Action against use of chemicals in fish

KOCHI

In view of the wide-spread reports about fish vendors using hazardous chemicals to prevent fish stocks from deterioration, Food Safety Commissioner Navajoth Khosa has promised stern action against the practice. Inaugurating the one-day seminar organised jointly by the National Academy of Agricultural Science and the Department of Food Processing Technology Vocational Studies at Teresa's College here, the officer said the practice had been more rampant in northern Kerala and to counter the practice, the Food Safety Department had launched project Sagar Rani. A. Gopalakrishnan, Director, CMFRI, presided over the event.
