Workshop on ICAR Consortium of e-Resources in Agriculture held at CMFRI

A training-cum-awareness workshop on Consortium of e-Resources in Agriculture (CeRA) called for promoting ICT driven technology and information dissemination systems to improve agricultural research in the country. The workshop was held at the Central Marine Fisheries Research Institute (CMFRI) to create awareness in using CeRA on J-Gate platform. Addressing the librarians and research scholars, Dr S K Singh, Project Director of the Directorate of Knowledge Management in Agriculture of ICAR said CeRA, the digital knowledge consortium, would help upscale the existing R & D information resource base of ICAR research institutions. Librarians representing the ICAR research institutes and agricultural universities located in Andhra Pradesh, Telengana, Karnataka, Tamil Nadu and Kerala attended the workshop. S K Joshi, Business Manager and in-charge of CeRA; Dr G Maheshwarudu, Head of Crustacean Fisheries Division, CMFRI and P Geetha, Office in Charge of Library, CMFRI spoke on the occasion.
