At 86, the thirst for knowledge continues to fuel Padma awardee Ali Manikfan, driving him to say that the relentless pursuit of learning remains a core motivation in his life.

Speaking after receiving the prestigious honorary fellowship of the Marine Biological Association of India (MBAI) at a function held at the Central Marine Fisheries Research Institute (CMFRI) here, he said much of his scientific learning had been stemmed from his life experiences.

According to him, his close observation of nature and curiosity to understand the science behind everything shaped his life.
